Make no mistake. Visiting MONTREAL is a little like going to Paris... without the jet lag. Well, a little. True, the brooding facades and crooked streets of Old Montreal feel distinctly European, and yes, the locals take their French seriously, but don't confuse this cosmopolitan Canadian port city for a fusty, Old World wannabe. Freshened up by a wave of trendy new hotels, shops and restaurants, Montreal sings its own tune – and it sounds more like Arcade Fire (their homegrown indie band) than La Marseillaise. With the city's debilitating 1990's recession behind it (and the specter of Québécois secession all but forgotten), a lively patchwork of gleaming skyscrapers, bohemian enclaves and high-gloss hideaways now outshines the city's gritty industrial past. Given the recently improving American dollar against the Canadian dollar (now about even), Montreal is not the bargain it used to be some ten years ago, but hey, it's cheaper than Paris... and it's way closer.

Quebec can give provincialism a good name. Orphaned by mother France, dominated by Britain (after what Québécois still call the Conquest) then for years by majority-Anglophone Canada, the people of Quebec have followed Voltaire's advice to tend to their own garden. This is especially true of QUEBEC CITY, the provincial capital. Proudly dated, lovingly maintained, Quebec City has charm to spare, particularly within the walls of the Old Town and in the Lower Town tucked between the walls and the St. Lawrence River. Travelers with a retro lifestyle will find the city especially welcoming – at pretty much any hour you can find a drink, smoke indoors, wear fur and eat wild game. This backwoods vigor coexists with serious refinement seen in the quality of the restaurants and hotels and the profusion of art galleries. To a Yankee it may all seem European, but there is no place like this in Europe. There is nothing else like it in North America, either. And that – my traveling friends – is reason enough to go. That, and (oh yeah) the fabulous Fall Foliage!

FAIRMONT QUEEN ELIZABETH (MONTREAL) – www.fairmont.com/queenelizabeth

At the center of Montréal's vibrant cultural and commercial district sits the city's grandest and most gracious hotel, the Fairmont

The Queen Elizabeth, recently recognized by Travel + Leisure as one of the 500 greatest hotels in the world. Since 1958, Montréal's largest hotel (1,000+ rooms) has lent its presence to the city, sitting atop the VIA Rail's Gare Centrale (the main train station), Metro Station (Bonaventure), and the "underground city", and near popular shopping areas such as Place Ville-Marie and Place Bonaventure. This desirable location makes "the Queenie" a frequent choice for heads of state and touring celebrities. Guestrooms are luxuriously appointed.

FAIRMONT LE CHATEAU FRONTENAC (QUEBEC) –

www.fairmont.com/frontenac

Standing high on a bluff overlooking the mighty St. Lawrence River, Fairmont Le Château Frontenac is not merely a hotel located in the heart of Old Québec, it IS the heart of Old Québec. Wowing visiting royalty and other quests since 1893, this stunning medieval French structure is as much a tourist attraction as a place to stay. Known locally as "the Château," the hotel was built in phases (following the landline) so the wide halls take crooked paths. 605 guestrooms vary in size/configuration, but all are luxuriously appointed with chateau furnishings.

GETCHA GOUDA ON – Fondue Dinner Party ($60 pp)

If you think of fondue as cubes of bread and melted cheese, you're in for a nice surprise. FONDUE MENTALE (www.fondumentale.com) has taken the art of fondue to the next level – their repertoire begins with traditional recipes and expands to suit a variety of international tastes. Join us for a lively traditional fondue dinner party. Price includes pre fixe menu (below), tax and gratuities. No host beverages (wine list and other libations) available for purchase. We will meet at the restaurant – everyone can take the Metro from the Fairmont, metro or walk 1-mile from the Le Relais Lyonnais, or taxi from either. The nearest Metro Station to Fondue Mentale (5-minute walk) is Mont Royal (Orange line).

PRE FIXE MENU

HOUSE SALAD and BAKED POTATO

Traditional SWISS CHEESE FONDUE, one pot shared between two people – a blend of emmenthal, gruyère, white wine & garlic (with some sample creative variations including the addition of wild mushrooms, pink peppercorns, pesto, cider and/or dijon) and, of course, lots of crusty french bread for dipping

Choice of INTERNATIONAL FONDUE, one pot shared between two people

Chinese Fondue – a pot of vegetables and spices simmered for hours resulting in only the beginning of what you add. The magic is that every time you put another piece of meat, seafood, game, or tofu into the broth, the flavor intensifies

or

French Bourguignon Fondue – piping hot canola oil, heated to 375°, which sears a huge variety of protein and wild game instantly and slightly caramelizes seafood

Choice of PROTEINS, four shared between two people

choinoise beef, filet mignon, pork teriyaki, lamb, salmon, squid, shrimp, scallops, honey chicken, pork teriyaki, lamb, duck, wild boar, fallow deer, caribou, buffalo, musk ox, tofu

Choice of DESSERT FONDUE, one pot shared between two people, served wit fresh fruit for smothering

Swiss Chocolate Fondue – what the Swiss do best – chocolate

or

Canadian Creamy Maple Fondue

THE BIG O CANADA – Olympic Park & Stadium Tour (no-host – metro and admission/tour costs, at your own expense)

Since 2004, when the Montreal Expos relocated to Washington D.C., the Olympic Stadium has no main tenant, and with a history of financial and structural problems, it is largely seen as a white elephant. It currently serves as a 56,040-seat multipurpose facility for special events during non-winter months, and continues to serve as a 66,308-seat venue for playoff and Grey Cup games hosted by the Montreal Alouettes. La tour de Montréal, the tower incorporated into the base of the stadium, is the tallest inclined tower in the world at 175 meters, and is a member of the World Federation of Great Towers. The stadium's nickname "The Big O" is a reference to both its name and to the doughnut-shape of the permanent component of the stadium's roof, though "The Big Owe" is used to reference the astronomical cost of the stadium and the 1976 Olympics as a whole. The infamous Olympic Stadium in Montreal's Olympic Park has had more than its fair share of flack. Just ask any Montrealer and you will hear the tales of disgust and scandal that surround the making of the stadium intended for the 1976 Olympics. The Montreal Olympic Stadium is a brilliant structure, to be sure. It is just too bad that it wasn't completed until 1990 (14 years after the Olympics had come and gone). Not only did the Stadium take far longer to build than expected, it also cost hundreds of millions more than estimated. To add insult to injury, the Stadium and swimming complex have had a bad tract record with parts breaking down and falling apart. The much talked about retractable roof for the Stadium did not even arrive from Paris, France until 1981. It sat unused for several years before the city found the money to have it attached. Even then, it ripped several times and needed expensive repairs. In 1991 part of the roof's support caused hunks of concrete weighing 55 tons to fall to the ground. Miraculously, no one died. The city then decided to replace the retractable roof with a non-retractable steel one (project that cost around $57 million), and, if that wasn't bad enough, another blunder took place in 1993 when one of the Olympic pool floors fell in during a therapy session with some senior citizens. Apart from these major disasters (or perhaps because of them) the Olympic Stadium has become a busy tourist attraction in Montreal. The Stadium has been desperately trying to book events to pay for its financial debt, and if you do not get to attend an event at the Stadium, you can help take a bite out of the debt by taking a guided tour of the complex. Together, we will depart from the Fairmont Queen Elizabeth Metro Station (Bonaventure) to the Olympic Park Métro station (Viau). Once there, tours leave daily from the swimming complex lobby: ADULT PRICES: Stadium guided tour (30 min) $8 pp; Montreal Tower Observatory (30 min) $15 pp; Combo ticket for both (70 min) $19. Seniors over 65 years (or older) are nearly half price. The Stadium's natatorium (with six different pools) is impressive – one pool has an adjustable bottom, one is 49 feet deep for scuba diving. There is also a free shuttle bus from the Olympic Park to the Botanical Gardens, also worth a visit. For more information: www.rio.gouv.qc.ca

OFF THE BEATEN PATH – Countryside bus tour ($55 pp)

Travel back in time to rural Québec and enjoy the view as you take the off the beaten path along 40 kilometers of the Chemin du Roy to Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupré. You'll pass through many traditional villages of rural Québec with three included stops: Basilica and shrine of Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupré, Montmorency Falls, and the Island of Orléans, discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1535 and home of the picturesque 19th century rural atmospheric village of Sainte-Pétronille.

BASILICAS AND BREWS – Pub Crawl (no host event – beer and snack purchases, at your own expense)

Crawling together, we'll set out on a mapped path no-host beer tasting expedition (passing historic churches, cathedrals and, yes, a basilica enroute). You are in charge of purchasing your own beer, drinks and snacks along the way. Pub crawlers can go the full distance or fall out when they get too tired or too full. Be prepared for a wild night! We'll take the Metro to the Place d'Armes station and walk to Pub St. Paul (www.pubstpaul.com) 124 Rue St. Paul E.t) a drinking establishment situated along the cobblestone streets of Old Montreal (happy hour 4-7 pm). After a pint, we'll head for a quick view of the nearby Notre-Dame Basilica (one of the oldest Cathedrals in North America) and then jaunt over to Christ Church Cathedral. Further a field, we land at the Le Vieux Dublin Pub (<http://dublinpub.ca> – one of Montreal's oldest and best-loved Irish pubs, and a popular destination among locals long before Old World-style pubs became the rage). After sampling a Guinness or a Harp, you can head back to the Fairmont (only a couple of blocks away), or continue to hit the pavement to the Basilica Marie-Reine du Monde (a 19th-century cathedral modeled on Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome). From there, we're only a hop, skip and a jump from Rue Crescent (a long street of pubs, cafes, restaurants and night clubs). First up on this street (and our third pub stop) is Brutopia Brew Pub (www.brutopia.net – #1219 Rue Crescent), specializing in microbrew English ales, but they also serve lager, stout, porter and various seasonal specialties, all created onsite. Next door, the Madhatter Saloon (#1220 Rue Crescent) prides itself on its unpretentious wacky-weird atmosphere and attracts a loyal customer base with its range of Molson, microbrewed and imported beers on tap as well as a simple menu of sandwiches, hamburgers, hot dogs, poutine (french fries with cheese curds and gravy). A few doors down, another one of Montreal's most popular Irish pubs, Hurleys Irish Pub (www.hurleysirishpub.com – #1225 Rue Crescent) is the place to be for whiskey drinkers, and they also offer a number of beers on tap including several from Quebec's McAuslan Brewery. The final stop is Sir Winston Churchill (www.winniesbar.com – #1445 Rue Crescent, established in 1967) to shoot some pool and grab a pint on the ground floor pub, head upstairs to Winnie's restaurant/cigar lounge, and/or continue to the top floor to Katrina's, a wine bar catering to patrons looking for something other than the beer and pub experience. A few doors down (for deep fried pub fare to satisfy a crawler's beer belly) check out London Pub. When you're done, walk-taxi-metro back to your hotel on your own.
